TITLE: MEET AURENNE

I have served as a mediator on over 375 cases involving complex commercial litigation, real estate and real property disputes, entertainment, employment matters, personal injury claims, and insurance coverage issues. But what truly sets my mediation practice apart is my approach that combines an evaluative style with an authentic ability to connect with decision-makers at every level. I found myself navigating diverse perspectives very early on, through my exposure to international business operations. Today, this balance has earned the trust of defense firms, plaintiffs' counsel, and institutional clients seeking decisive resolution to challenging resolutions.

I completed Law School and earned my first Master of Laws (LLM) in the United Kingdom. It was inevitable that I craved an education at the forefront of where our Common Law originated. After being at the forefront of litigated cases in front of juries, managing complex business litigation, and exploring the United Kingdom's commercial litigation environments, I realized that mediation is what truly aligned with my natural abilities and attitude toward disputes.

The collaborative nature of dispute resolution perfectly aligned with my strategic problem-solving approach and my belief that conflicts often unveil opportunities for mutual benefit. I deepened this dedication and honed my mediation expertise by pursuing an LLM in Dispute Resolution at the Straus Institute, with a concentration in mediation.

Alongside my private practice, I serve as a mediator on Superior Court panels throughout Los Angeles, Riverside, and Santa Barbara, and on various national and international private panels as a mediator and arbitrator. As a resource for other mediators, I provide advanced mediation training and coaching along with chairing a Professional Development Group.

As both a licensed attorney and a real estate and business professional, I bring comprehensive expertise to each mediation that extends "beyond the line" of mere legal settlements. As I maintain a sharp focus on the numbers that drive settlements, my worldly perspective enables me to navigate parties through litigation complexities and transactional intricacies – a vital advantage in today's interconnected business environment. I have discovered that lasting resolutions emerge when I am able to bring my legal expertise and individualized attention to participants' matters so that they feel genuinely understood.

All I need to do then is set up the table to break positional bargaining into meaningful dialogue.
